We have several pamphlets available. They include: (1) Statements of Water Division and Use, (2) Information Pertaining to Water Rights in California, and statements of Water Division, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future appropriators.

The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water use, (2) enables the State to notify such users if someone proposes a new appropriation.

An appropriate right is required for use of water riparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriate rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914, new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land. Riparian land must be in the same watershed as the water source and must never have been taken from the sources of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to flows from use of groundwater, or other "foreign" water to the natural stream system.

the stream but may not be used to store water for later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, water previously stored by others, return of a stream. Generally, a riparian user must share the water supply with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, water previously stored by others, return

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriate rights.

The above discussion is provided for general information. For more specific information concerning water rights, please contact an attorney or write to this office. We have several pamphlets available. They include: (1) Statements of Water Division and Use, (2) Information Pertaining to Water Rights in California, and (3) Appropriation of Water in California.

Statements of Water Division and Use must be filed by riparian and per 1914 appropriative water users. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water use, (2) enables the State to notify such users if someone proposes a new appropriation upstream from their diversions, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future appropriators.

Only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914, new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State.

An appropriative right is required for use of water on nonirrigated land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914, new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State.

Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or divert water which originates in a different watershed, or return flows from use of groundwater.

A riparian right is based on the water source and must never have been severed from the sources of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. Generally, a riparian user must share the water supply with other riparian users.
